When you bid on a work of art, you decide for yourself how much you would like to pay for it. If you have a valid winning bid at the close of the auction and your credit card is authorized for full payment by your bank, you will win the work of art. Once a bid has been submitted you may not cancel it. Your card will not be charged when you submit a bid. Your card will be charged only if you have a valid winning bid at the close of the auction. The price you pay for the artwork will be the actual amount you bid. The winning bid will not be determined until all auction bids, if any, have been received on March 31, 2008. The auctioneer will acknowledge your bid and knock down the work to you at the most favorable price, taking into consideration other bids. Winning bidders will be notified by April 15, 2007.

Payment: Payment for the art work will be accepted via credit card (VISA, MasterCard or AMEX). CLAC Director Carlos Fernandez will be contacting the winning bidders at the e-mail addresses or phone numbers provided on the bidder registration.

IRS states that persons who purchase items at a charity auction may claim a charitable contribution deduction for the excess of the purchased price paid for an item over its fair market value. The RU Foundation will forward donors official receipts for tax deductible donations through the mail.

Shipment: Winning bidders are encouraged to pick-up the artwork in person at the Center for Latino Arts and Culture, 122 College Avenue, New Brunswick, NJ 08901, as we cannot guarantee the condition of the packaged artwork should it be handled by a delivery service.
